Pacer Interview

Prados Talks

By DEAN HITT

The following is an interview conducted with Dr. John Prados, acting chancellor of UTM. Dr. Prados is the vice president of academic affairs for the UT system. He will serve while a replacement for Dr. Larry T. McGehee is being sought. In addition to these responsibilities, Dr. Prados is the chairperson of an advisory committee to help Dr. Boling select a new UTM chancellor.

PACER: WHY SO MANY RESIGNATIONS AT THIS TIME?

PRADOS: "At the university level we have had a very stable situation for the last four or five years, with no chancellors or vice presidents changing positions."

Dr. McGehee, who had been chancellor here for almost eight years, I think, felt that he had done about all that he could do in this capacity and that he would like to try something different."

PACER: SO BASICALLY YOU DON'T SEE ANYTHING ON CAMPUS REALLY CAUSING THESE RESIGNATIONS?

PRADOS: "No. No I don't see any pattern. The fact that things have been so stable for a while made it seem even more unusual that several of these things came up at once."

PACER: IS THE UT SYSTEM CHANGING THE ADMINISTRATION ON THIS CAMPUS AT THIS TIME?

PRADOS: "I would say that there is no attempt on the part of the university wide administration to force the campus administration into any particular mode or to do any changing just for the sake of changing. I think Dr. Boling's philosophy is to try to get as good a chancellor as he can then pretty well leave it up to the chancellor as to how he or she organizes the campus and how it is run."

Of the four campuses we operate, three of them operate the same. They reflect in large part the nature of the institution, the historical development of the institution and the personal style of the chancellor who happens to be there."

I don't anticipate making any significant organizational changes on this campus. I would want to leave it up to the new chancellor the task of deciding whether any major realignments or responsibilities are to be made."

PACER: HOW IS THIS CAMPUS DOING FINANCIALLY?

PRADOS: "Well, this campus is probably worse off than most of the campuses in the state in the sense that we do not have a large endowment to draw on."

Our main financial base is in our real estate over the past eight years. It looks pretty good for this fall. But the fact that we don't have that big population base to draw on means that we don't get nearly as many part time students as you get in the urban areas."

That may become more important in the future years in that the number of high school graduates is going down. As that traditional base lessens those part timers become more important in filling in."

PACER: WHAT ARE THE BIG PROBLEMS ON THIS CAMPUS NOW?

PRADOS: "I guess the biggest problem that I will have is working with the campus administrators in developing a budget and an appropriations request for next year. That will have to be done before a new chancellor is hired. We will have budget hearings with the Higher Education Commission in October."

The problem that this institution has, like most institutions of higher education, is not enough money to go around to do the things that we would like to do."

PACER: WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR IN THE NEW CHANCELLOR?

PRADOS: "We're looking for someone who has the respect of the academic community. Someone with good academic credentials, an earned doctorate, presumably some experience as a teacher and someone that the faculty and students will respect for his or her educational qualifications."

We're looking for someone who has experience in administering educational programs. Someone who has had experience in managing people, money and resources. Someone who has shown that they know how to make decisions. Someone who has proved himself in an administrative role."

We need someone with a good personality. You could have a person who is a great scholar and for that matter a good administrator and decision maker but they might be very cold and aloof."

The chancellor of this campus, probably more so than any even the Knoxville campus, has got to be able to develop those relationships with the community and the surrounding area. So much of the well being of this campus depends on having good will from the people of northwest Tennessee."

We need a manager, someone who knows how to manage limited resources. I don't foresee that this campus is going to have in easy time in the Jose Gregorio Guerra Rosalen heads toward olympics.

UTM Student is Olympic Hopeful

By RICKY ALLEN

The 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow begin in only eleven months, and the search for the most talented amateur athletes in the U. S. is quickly coming to an end.

UTM has become one of the centers of attention of U. S. Olympic team scouts because of the skill of one remarkable young man, Jose Gregorio Guerra Rosalen.

What distinguishes Jose from the more than 1,000 other U. T. Martin students is the fact that he is an internationally recognized and nationally ranked table tennis and pingpong player.

The 21 year old junior in liberal arts has been playing table tennis at home in Maracabo, Venezuela since he was eight years old.

I really started out training to be a swimmer, but when Gregorio's grandfather, who was the Venezuelan National Pingpong champion and with his inspiration and coaching, I became addicted to the game.

Success obviously came to the Guerra family, because Jose has played in the Venezuelan National Pingpong Championships seven times, winning five championships and placing second and third in the other two. In 1972 at the age of 14 he was selected to represent his country in the Olympics in Munich, West Germany.

Jose came to the United States and U. T. Martin in September of 1973 and continued to still ranked third in the world among table tennis players.

When I came to the University I did not have any plans to play competitively, he said. But I heard of a tournament scheduled in St. Louis and I thought I would give it a try. I went to the National Pingpong Championships in Houston.

'The Times, They Are A Changing'

By DEAN HILL

This summer has been a season of changes for this campus. Chancellor Larry T. McGuffee announced in June his resignation, which became effective in September. Dr. McGuffee was becoming special assistant, President Boardman, for the University's planning and development program.

Dr. Jack Mays has been named as interim administrator of the administration and development to become general manager of A. Beville Reagan Enterprises in Gatlinburg. Mays' duties will be taken over by Nick Dunagan and Ed Neil White. Dunagan will continue his role as the University's development officer and becomes responsible for the administration of the alumni office and University relations department. White becomes assistant to the chancellor for facilities planning and campus safety.

On July 1 Dr. Jimmy Trentham left his post as Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs. He returned

Arts and Sciences. Dr. Jim Johnson was appointed as acting dean. He is the chairperson of the Department of Math and Computer Sciences. Acting chairperson of that department is Dr. Sue Boren.

Perdue Dr. Don DeFaux replaced Dr. Ron Classen as director of the Counseling Center and Tommy McGlown is a new counselor there. Recreational Sports will have Ed Miehaus as coordinator of

Women's Career Convention Scheduled

The Tennessee Women's Career Convention, scheduled for October 26-27 at Municipal Auditorium in Nashville, Tennessee, offers students an entirely new method of exploring careers, according to Gail Larsen, convention director.

Designed to match qualified women and employers, and to build shells for career success through a program of nearly 50 workshops and seminars, the convention is a first of its kind event for the Southeast.

Over 100 major businesses and organizations will participate, said Ms. Larsen, a personnel specialist who originated the idea for the convention and who organized the sponsoring company, Career Conventions, Inc. "These organizations will have exhibit space where their recruiters will meet with the several thousand women expected to attend the convention."

"Women should bring their resumes and get a head start on career placement," Larsen said. "Many of these companies are specifically looking for upcoming graduates. It's a great opportunity."

The two-day event will have nearly 50 workshops, seminars and career panels featuring some 100 recognized authorities as speakers.

The program is designed for three different audiences of women: those entering or re-entering the workforce, or women considering a career change; working women interested in improving skills for career advancement; and those who are ready for upper management, self-employment and/or political office.

"Our program will be especially helpful to senior women about to embark on a career. This audience will receive a definite edge toward early career definition and success," said Pam Howison, convention coordinator, and former associate director of career planning and placement at UT Knoxville.

Career panels will focus on banking, accounting-finance, personnel-industrial relations, law, insurance, data processing, music, engineering, sales and marketing, public relations-advertising, health care and other fields.

Employers' exhibits will be open for the entirety of the two-day convention, with special time set aside for participants to visit booths between programs.

Pre-registration is $10 per day, with a reduced rate of $5 per day for students.

For more information, contact Gail Larsen, 230 Fourth Avenue North, Nashville, Tennessee 37219 615-256-8077.

Counseling Center

Yes, there is a Counseling Center on the campus at Martin. The original title was "Personal Assistance Center." This title unfortunately tends to blend in with other concepts denoting students' assistance functions unrelated to counseling services. Ergo, for identity purposes, the title was changed to "Counseling Center" located in the Hall-Moody Administration Building, Room

The Counseling Center provides several distinct services to meet the needs of students. Usually three basic areas in counseling interaction could be delineated as: 1) personal-self-growth development, 2) academic - study-growth development, and 3) problem resolution - decision-making skills (e.g. interpersonal, careers, etc.) It should be stressed that all counseling sessions are confidential, one of the highest value priorities in counseling.

In addition, there are other important services which are related to and-or splinters off the major services. For example: conducting individual-group sessions-seminars on topics such as communication skills or interpersonal problem resolution, diagnostic testing, serving as a mediator between two persons or groups, lecturing on special topics pertaining to students interests; conducting a workshop requested by students, leading personal development groups, serving as a consultant on problems-needs resolution and similar forms of activities.

The Counseling Center feels that it has confident, enthusiastic and student oriented staff members who are willing to respond to requests-appointments made by students. Those interested in contacting the Center can call:

Sandy Belote	Secretary	587-7720
Tommy McGlown	Counselor	587-7722

Happy House Day Care Center

The Happy House Day Care Center, located at 229 Moody Street, has day care services available to all UTM families. It exists primarily for the benefit of student and staff mothers of UTM. At the same time, children of faculty and others from the community-at-large will be admitted.

Emphasis is on protective care, quality health, and social and educational enrichment. Care is provided for children from six (6) weeks of age through five (5) years of age. Fees are assessed on a sliding-fee-scale.

Children of the University students are given first priority. For further information regarding these services, contact Ms. Billy Ann Pace, Director of Women's Activities, Room 223, Administration Building or Ms. Charlene Newcomb, Happy House. The University operates Happy House with a Title Twenty grant with the Tennessee Department of Human Services.

Student Governing Bodies

Presently there are four student organizations that are termed governing bodies. The following is a list of these organizations and information concerning their activities and responsibilities.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL. Dr. Donald Sexton. The Inter-Fraternity Council is the coordinating body of the fraternity system. IFC develops policies, rules, and regulations affecting all men's social fraternities. IFC is composed of three (3) representatives from each of the eight member fraternities.

INTER-HALL COUNCIL. Earl Wright, Billie Ann Pace, and Harold T. Conner. Inter-Hall Council correlates interests common to the different residence halls, provides activities and functions for the residential student body, and promotes a living-learning relationship and a genuine respect among individuals for themselves and their halls.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL. Billie Ann Pace and Deborah Hawkins, Rush Advisor, Debbie Bucher. Panhellenic is the governing body for all social sororities on the UTM campus placing emphasis on rushing and pledging regulations and procedures, fostering a sense of cooperation and understanding, and creating unity among the sororities.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION. Dr. Phillip Watkins. The Student Government Association is the officially recognized representative of the student body. Officers for 1979-80 are: Mike Turner, President; Steve Hyers, Vice-President; Jimmy Cooper, Secretary of Finance; Tina Hall, Secretary of Affairs; David Griggs, Secretary of Communications; and Elmer Martin, Secretary of Minority Affairs.

Recreational Sports

The Recreational Sports Program is designed to provide opportunities for participation in a wide variety of sports and recreational activities for the entire university community. Participation is the general aim of the program, getting students, faculty, and staff involved in physical activities that might help in the realization of such basic needs as relaxation, belonging, achieving, and maintenance of good health and fitness.

There are two basic aspects of the program: 1.) Intramurals-organized and competitive sports; 2.) Recreational-informal, self-directed play.

The Intramural Program fosters development of three major areas; men's intramurals, women's intramurals, and co-rec intramurals. These involve competition among participants who enter, as teams or individually, leagues and tournaments to play according to specific schedules. Such competition involves arranged schedules, facilities, supervision, student officials, and usually recognition through the student newspaper. Interest, not skill, is the major requirement for intramural participation.

Recreation lacks most of the foregoing characteristics, emphasizing instead self-motivation and impromptu, spontaneous activity. This aspect of the program encourages individuals to use facilities and equipment during certain time periods. Such facilities include the swimming pool, tennis courts, basketball courts, racquetball courts, volleyball and badminton courts.

International Programs

The Office of International Programs, administered by the Director of International Programs, offers a wide variety of services to international students.

Services include counseling, sponsorship of the International Club and maintenance of appropriate records. The Office also provides federal forms needed by international students, recruits international students, and seeks to promote international understanding.

The Office also has administrative responsibility for the Intensive English Language Training Program, which provides instruction in English as a Foreign Language. This program offers courses at the beginning, intermediate, and advanced levels, and prepares students for entrance to the regular curriculum. The TOEFL (Test of English as a Foreign Language) is offered quarterly for all international students.

ATHLETICS
Intercollegiate

UTM's program of intercollegiate sports for men includes football, basketball, baseball, and tennis. The University has several athletic fields, gymnasiums, and lighted tennis courts. Memberships is maintained in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the Gulf South Conference (GSC) which includes institutions in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. Conference championships in all sports earn opportunities for NCAA regional and national competition.

An intercollegiate sports program for women is available at UTM. Membership is held in the Tennessee College Women's Sports Federation (TCWSF) and the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW). Team competition in volleyball, basketball, tennis, badminton, and coed gymnastics is scheduled with TCWSF member schools and other border state colleges and universities.

Campus Affiliated Religious Centers

The University of Tennessee at Martin is committed to the offering of a wide variety of opportunities planned to enrich the student. Among the areas of concern beyond the purely intellectual are social and ethical development which include the sharpening of values, the fostering of moral sensitivity and the development of a sense of personal responsibility. A number of religious organizations share this concern for the whole person and have established campus ministries. These ministries work cooperatively with the University to further the common concern which both share. The University acknowledges those campus ministries listed below which have met the following criteria:

- a) their principal mission is ministry to and with the university community.
- b) they are organized and authorized under the auspices of a nationally recognized religious body, and
- c) they have been in existence as campus ministries long enough (at least two years) to establish the nature and true purpose of the organization.

These campus ministries may make use of campus facilities with the same rights and responsibilities that apply to any campus organization, as long as such use remains consistent with the purposes of the University (as determined by the University) and does not attempt to infringe on the privacy or rights of others. Use of any campus facility will be cleared through the Office of Undergraduate Life.

Fellowship, a non-denominational organization, is to reach students of UTM with the message of Jesus Christ and to lead believers to Christian maturity. Membership is open to all students enrolled at UTM.

McCord Residence Hall Association. Sandy Belote. The avowed purpose of the organization is to foster a feeling of togetherness and understanding among members, to stress well-being among students, and to promote a desire for school spirit and good moral character.

Racquetball Club. Randy Cate and Wayne Keene. The purpose of this organization shall be to encourage and promote participation in the sport of racquetball to all UTM students, faculty, and staff members. The Racquetball Club will have as its goal to form a Racquetball Team from its club members to compete interscholastically.

Rodeo Club. Niels Robinson. The purpose of the club shall be to cultivate fellowship among students to create and promote Rodeo sportsmanship in intercollegiate competition and to support the UTM Rodeo Team.

ROTC PACERETEE CORPS.

Capt. C. M. Glave. The purposes of this organization are to assist the Military Science Department in any academic or military functions to perform as a drill team, and to work with other campus organizations in the betterment of campus life.

Rifle Teams

The Department of Military Science supervises and coaches all UTM rifle teams. There are two teams - the ROTC Rifle Team and the Varsity Rifle Team - that represent UT Martin in intercollegiate small bore rifle competition.

The ROTC Team is open only to men and women who are enrolled in Army ROTC; however, the Varsity Rifle Team is open to all regularly enrolled male and female students. The Varsity Rifle Team is a recognized UTM athletic team, members of which are eligible to receive school letters and other awards for achievement.

Orienteering Club

The Department of Military Science supervises and coaches the UTM Orienteering Team. The members of the club represent UT Martin in intercollegiate orienteering meets.

The club is open to all men and women enrolled in any Military Science course. Acceptance into the club is based upon demonstrated knowledge of land navigation techniques and physical endurance.

coming years. Given the tax situation and given the population in Tennessee, we're going to be in a situation where there's always going to be less money to do what we need to do."

PACER: STUDENTS ARE HAVING TUITION INCREASES. BUDGETS ARE NOT INCREASING AND AT TIMES BEING CUT. IS THE LEGISLATURE DOING ITS PART IN FUNDING ITS STATE UNIVERSITY?

PRADOS: "Those of us in higher education obviously feel that we're not getting as much as we need. The problem is, of course, that every other area of state government feels the same way. So I have a great sympathy for a governor, his staff and the legislature."

Our basic problem in Tennessee is that we have such a limited tax base. Given the constraints that the state has placed on itself by not having an income tax the legislature has probably done pretty well."

In a sense, you get what you pay for. I think we've done a good job in this state in giving a good quality education at a very low cost, but it sure hasn't been easy."

Dr. Larry T. McGehee.

PACER: DR. MCGEHEE WILL BE WORKING ON ARTS AND HUMANITIES DEVELOPMENT. ARE THE PRIORITIES IN THE UT SYSTEM CHANGING?

PRADOS: "Dr. McGehee's role as assistant to the president for Arts and Humanities development is something that he himself was interested in pursuing. It does not represent any intention to reallocate existing resources."

He feels that by working with foundations he can raise additional revenues to support programs in Arts and Humanities that have difficulties in finding support from traditional sources of private gifts. He felt that he had some leads, some contacts that he could explore in these areas."

There he placed 18th. In 1978 the young Venezuelan won the Ohio State Pingpong Championships and represented Ohio in the 1978 national tournament, where he placed seventh. The ranking qualified him to try out this month for one of 25 spots on the 1980 U. S. Olympic team at Lake Placid, N. Y.

"Prior to the St. Louis tournament, I had no plans to compete in the U. S. or to compete internationally," he says. "However, once the spark of competition has been lit, few can resist its flame."

Jose will play for the United States in 1980, because "there are more opportunities to train and learn in the United States and the level of play is much more advanced."

Jose insists table tennis has now become his hobby, although he admits he likes the high degree of competition and fast-paced action the game commands.

The key to his success, he says, is good eyesight, a clear mind, and physical stamina. "If you know the game, then you do not need to practice much," he says. "I play other sports to keep in shape, mostly judo and volleyball. If you really understand the game and stay in good physical shape, then you can compete and you can win."

Provided he qualifies for the U. S. Olympic team, and there is every reason to believe he will, Jose will compete in Moscow early next summer. But after that?

"I plan to graduate from UT Martin with a major in biochemistry in the spring of 1980," he says. "From there, I plan to work on a master's degree in biochemistry and return to Venezuela to teach."

And will he continue his career as a table tennis player?

"Well, right now I am uncertain about that. I will continue to play for my personal enjoyment and I would like to train young people to play championship pingpong."

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with an ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out... and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.
